

Cities agree to bus line

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
AND TRACI BONNEY

The cities of Waveland and Bay St. Louis separately approved Tuesday the establishment of a weekend bus route for public use.

Mayor Stella Frilot reported to the Waveland Board of Aldermen that the two cities would each contribute 25 percent of the yearly $9,000 cost to operate the line following deduction of fares.

She added that federal matching funds were available for the purpose of operating the line. She estimated the monthly cost to each city at $250.

Coast Area Transit of Gulfport would operate the line which is planned to begin the Saturday and Sunday service beginning May 2.

to cross Highway 90; left onto the north side service road and loop in the MarkTown Shopping Center;

County school board to review spending Monday

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

In spite of last month's optimistic budget overview, county school board members voted Monday to review current and proposed spending practices at the next scheduled board meeting.

Lennette Necaise, board member and acting president in Frank Miller's absence, expressed concerns over pending state cuts. She moved that superintendent Myrna Bourgeois produce itemized statements of district expenditures for better understanding of fund distribution.

Her motion passed unanimously.

The board will meet Monday, April 13 at 4:30 p.m. in Hancock High School Library.

In other business the board approved:

—the amended minutes of December 2, 10, 17, 23 and 31, 1991, January 6, 8 and 21, 1992,

February 3, 10 and 17, 1992, and March 2 and 4, 1992;

—the purchase of computers for Hancock North Central Elementary in the amount of $8,627;

—final payment of $10,766 to Hancock Bank for bus purchases;

Waveland FmHa project flows along to completion

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Waveland Board of Aldermen approved acceptance of the newly FmHA constructed water well and water lines and 25 percent of the sewer extension Tuesday, closing the books on half of the city's $1.3 million project.

City planner Ray Eaton explained, acceptance of the well and water lines meant the city would now accept responsibility for maintenance and operation; the city insurance would now begin coverage; and warranties would become effective.

He said warranties on the sewer extension would not begin until the project was complete. Eaton reminded the board the contractor is still responsible for his work for up to one year.

FmHA approved the well, lines and sewer portion following an inspection and state health department approval on water quality.

The water lines were

Bay railroad depot restoration discussed

BY TRACI BONNEY

Enthusiasm seemed high among the small crowd gathered on the city park tennis court Tuesday evening, although tennis was not the matter at hand.

Instead, discussion centered on the City's possible purchase and renovation of the old CSX railroad depot in preparation for the start of Amtrak's Sunset Limited passenger line. Bay St. Louis has been designated by Amtrak as one of three stops along the Mississippi Gulf Coast for the run which is expected to start October 1.

Mayor Edward Favre welcomed the group to the town meeting, and received an amused audience response to the comment: "It's great to see so many people at a public meeting that has nothing to do with gambling."

He told those in attendance the city has agreed to provide certain amenities required by Amtrak for the train run. These amenities include a 600-foot loading/unloading platform for passengers and luggage; a wheelchair lift; a gazebo for passengers; a 20-car parking lot; approved drainage by CSX; and miscellaneous requirements for signage, lighting and other things.

Favre said many people have been under the impression that because the city has the Amtrak stop, the City will automatically own and operate the depot.

"Amtrak will lease on our behalf the CSX right of way for the placement of the platform and parking lot only. For all else, we are on our own."

Bay Council to meet with gaming officials

BY TRACI BONNEY

Bay St. Louis City Council members plan to meet with state gaming officials next week to discuss the city's proposed dockside gaming ordinance.

City gaming attorney Donald Rafferty presented the Council with the newest version of the ordinance, a 44-page document that he said "is not a final draft, but we're getting closer."

He told the Council that Gaming Commission director Royal Walker and assistant attorney general Wilson Carroll want to meet April 16 at 3 p.m. with the councilmen. The state officials have expressed the opinion recently that the proposed ordinance goes beyond the city's authority in regulating gaming casinos, and Rafferty said they want to talk about the ordinance provisions they question.

The ordinance contains a number of provisions concerning issuance of business licenses and work cards, defining terms, regulating taxes and fees, requiring presentation of certain documents to the City, and governing safety and other matters.

The Council agreed to meet in a workshop session. Council president Jim Rutherford hastened to stress, however, that the workshop will not include a public forum, although the public is invited to attend.

From Echo Staff Reports

SHOPLIFTING

Waveland Police Chief James Varnell reported Tuesday the arrests of three people on shoplifting charges.

Varnell said two women and a man were arrested about 3:35 p.m. Sunday and charged with shoplifting items from Kmart. Arrested were Debbie T. Murphy, 26, of Hinesville, Ga.; Patrick Leon Coleman, 20, of Long Beach; and Betty Burnett, 31, of Gulfport. Varnell said Murphy and Coleman were charged with one count each, while Burnett was charged with two counts.

Burnett may be charged with felony shoplifting, Varnell added. He said the Waveland department is awaiting transcripts of Burnett's previous record before filing the charge.

He also said charges may be pending from Wal-Mart, because there was Wal-Mart merchandise in the suspects' possession at the time of arrest and one of the suspects made a statement that indicates the three did shoplift it.

Varnell said the merchandise taken from Kmart totals about $180; no total on the Wal-Mart goods was available at the time of the report.

He added that all three suspects were incarcerated in the Hancock County jail in lieu of $700 bond each.

Arresting officer was Kent Malley, who was assisted by Brett Ladner and Frank Miller. Investigator Dave Stepro is in charge of the case.

DRUGS/WARRANTS

Waveland Police Chief James Varnell reported Wednesday that two Bayside Motel residents were arrested early that morning on drug and other charges.

Varnell said the St. Tammany Sheriff's Office and Slidell Police Department had two felony warrants for a suspect who they had been told was living at Bayside Motel. The suspect was wanted for several counts of forgery and was listed with the National Crime Information Center for leaving court during a trial.

The Louisiana officers did surveillance on the motel, but got no results, Varnell said, so they left a description and pictures of the man and his vehicle.

"Between 9:30 and 10 p.m., Gene Boswell observed the car that fit the description at the motel. Investigator Dave Stepro was called, and the Slidell and St. Tammany offices were notified.

"At about 1:36 a.m. Wednesday, the suspect was arrested without incident. At the time of the execution of the warrant, officers observed a large amount of marijuana (a little less than 3 lbs.) in the room.

"Greg Martin, a Waveland Police Department representative to the Metro Narcotics Task Force, was called in, and the suspect and his girlfriend were arrested."

Arrested were Steven Donnell Saunders, 28, and Deborah Blackwell, 26. Both gave Bayside Motel as their address.

Saunders was charged with possession of more than a kilo of marijuana with intent to distribute and is also being held on the felony charges from Slidell. Blackwell was charged with possession of more than a kilo of marijuana with intent to distribute.

Varnell said both were in the Hancock County jail under bonds of $10,000 each, but even if Saunders does make bond, he will be held for extradition to Louisiana.

Task Force Director Glen Strong confirmed Varnell's information, with one change: he listed Blackwell's address as 1353 W. Lawn Drive in Slidell.

He also said the amount of marijuana confiscated was 2.5 pounds.

Mississippi Power Company continues placing poles along Highway 90 for a new 115-KV line (KV=1,000 volts). The line, expected to be completed by June 1, will run 17.7 miles from Port Bienville Industrial Park to the Turner Street substation. Spokesman Buddy Elder said the line will serve the additional load and enhance service through the capacity of a loop feed. The loop feed system will provide the electric company with the ability to alternate electrical feed to areas. "Should there be a problem, we can switch power," Elder explained, "minimizing the affected area. The line will also prove to be a draw for potential industry. They look for a reliable power source when considering an area." (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran)

Depot

Favre said the City is in negotiation with CSX for purchase of the depot, and he anticipates a satisfactory arrangement being made.

He solicited the support of local businesses and individuals of all ages in whatever way possible, from donation of money to volunteering time and talents. He said volunteered manhours will help the City match state and federal grant funds without actual cash outlay on the City's part.

He outlined the City's needs for the project and once again made a request for support.

"Are you willing to buy into the project with your assistance?" he asked. "The City cannot tackle this project alone. Are you willing to volunteer your services, your time and your talents to the renovation of the buildings and the restoration of the grounds?"

tion of the grounds?"

"What we're asking for is any help you can give us; we need it, big or small."

Favre then opened the floor for questions from the audience. Those questions ranged from technical, legal and financial matters to practical concerns about how the restorations will be funded and conducted, and how the building will be used.

Favre said the depot can be a commercial, non-profit or mixed-used venture. It can house a museum, small retail stores or both.

He said near the end of the short meeting that those interested in volunteering to help can contact city hall at 467-9092 or stop by and fill out a volunteer form.

— at Highway 90 and Waveland Avenue the bus will turn right; loop within the store parking area at Wal-Mart Discount Store and re-enter Highway 90, again heading east;

— turn left at McLaurin Street and into the Choctaw Shopping area for another loop pick up;

— exit via Highway 603; turn left onto Highway 90 and travel east toward Bay St. Louis;

— re-enter the south service road route at Dunbar, pass Notre Dame de la Mer, make a U-turn across Highway 90 and repeat the MarketTown Shopping Center loop;

A CAT spokesperson added that the bus route will take one hour and forty minutes to complete. Each consecutive trip will alternate direction of route. The fare is estimated at $1 per rider.

Filrot added that the route will be on a trial basis and discontinuance of the line can be made at any time should the public not support its use.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Edward Favre, in discussing his recommendation for the line to the City Council, explained that CAT will use buses currently under contract for senior citizen transportation, so the city will not have any capital outlay for the project.

"The buses don't run on Saturdays and Sundays right now, so they're just sitting idle," he commented.

While Filrot estimated a $250 monthly cost to Waveland, Favre told the Council the cost per city would be no more than $200 a month.

He added that the line will make its circuit five times a day and will cross the bridge into Pass Christian, which will give passengers access to the trolley line that runs across Harrison County into Gulfport and Biloxi.

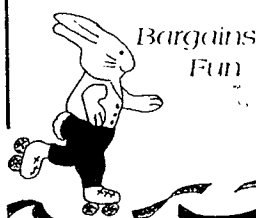

The Council unanimously supported Favre's recommendation to enter into an agreement with CAT and Waveland for the bus line.

State senators gut bingo bill

The Senate Finance committee severely trimmed a House bingo bill Tuesday.

The House version required each bingo player to pay a $1 tax, and each bingo operator to pay a $500 license fee to the Gaming Commission, which would regulate the games.

Under the House version of the bill, the Gaming Commission would get 50 cents of every bingo ticket sold, and the county and city would share the other 50 cents.

The Senate committee's version removed the fees and a requirement that the Gaming Commission issue licenses to bingo operators. Now, the bill only requires bingo operators to register with the Commission.

According to a Wednesday report, Sen. George Ready of Hernando was expected to propose an amendment calling for a tax on the proceeds from bingo games.

Williams reinstated as Bay AD

BY TRACI BONNEY

In a surprise motion Monday, Cleveland Williams was reinstated as the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District's athletic director.

After new board member David Turcotte was sworn in to replace Charles Benvenuti, whose term had expired, the board prepared to go into executive session to discuss applications for the superintendent position to be vacated by Robert Magee when he retires.

Before going into executive session, president Linda Penrose asked the board members if they had any other business to conduct in open session. Willie Bradley asked permission to make a motion, then moved to re-establish the athletic director's position and renew Williams' contract at an 11-month salary comparable to the one he is currently receiving.

Turcotte seconded the motion, which passed on a 3-2 split. Gary Yarborough and James Wilcox voted against the motion, while Penrose, Turcotte and Bradley supported it.

Greetings!

Shelley tells me the name of this column is funky and "has got to go." Since she is so clever about everything else, I defer to her good judgement. (Although she can't come up with a name.) Anyhow, we don't have a 900 number but we're looking for a new column title. Be creative. Bring it in or call us at 467-0203. Sure, there'll be a prize for the winner.

Skort dresses are HOT...and we just got another shipment. New ribbed T-shirts look great with our spandex bike shorts. Super new junior 2 piece bathing suits just arrived and some pretty floral cotton camp shirts are in too. You've been asking for them; short sleeve blue chambray shirts are in. (Yipes, we're still waiting for our misses dresses.)

Yes, we have layaway. So what are you waiting for? Come on over. And do me a big favor...come up with a smart new name for this column. I'll print the best ones.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

It was some good news I heard for myself and other track walkers last week from Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre.

The mayor told me the city was going to asphalt the parking area in about two months.

The Hancock Fitness Track or Walking Track in front of the Hancock Medical Center on Highway 90 is one of the most popular areas in town.

Thousands of residents use the facility and the parking area sure needs improvements.

I know that Mayor Favre will make many folks happy with a good parking area. Thanks, Eddie.

Funding allocation dominates House discussion

With passage of more than 60 appropriation bills, the House of Representatives has taken a big stride on the path toward final adoption of a projected $1.972 billion General Fund budget for the coming year.

Major House action included: —Approval of a modified proposal to impose an annual $500 tax on video poker machines and $500 on each place where the devices are located.

—Removing the additional homestead exemption for persons who are age 65 and older when their net taxable income is $18,000 or more per year (approximately $40,000 in annual gross income).

The House voted to allow the sale of $34.6 million in bonds for previously authorized building projects at four state universities, including a fine arts building at Delta State and library additions at Mississippi State, Ole Miss and Southern Mississippi.

A separate measure was passed to authorize $2.5 million in bonds for a new building to house the State Department of Agriculture and Commerce.

Among major General Fund allocations gaining House passage were $180 million for the universities; $88 million for mental health; $79 million for correctional programs; $64 million for community colleges; $60.8 million for the University Medical Center; $36 million for the Tax Commission; $31.4 million for the Department of Public Safety; and $31.5 million for payment on the state's bonded indebtedness.

In another legislative development, the House received word last week that its reapportionment plan has been accepted by the U.S. Justice Department.

An objection was filed to the Senate plan in regard to alignment of three senatorial districts in the southwestern part of the state. The plans were approved by the Legislature earlier in the session and sent to Washington for preclearance under the Voting Rights Act.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Sales tax increase to be divided many ways

Captain Kirk, as a number of legislators smilingly refer to Gov. Kirk Fordice, last week got the first glimpse of what lies ahead for his administration—the Mississippi Legislature, which appears to be on a collision course with him.

Totally ignoring Fordice's threat to veto any tax bill, the Senate last week proceeded to pass, by a veto-proof margin of 41-11, a 1-cent sales tax increase, dedicating a big chunk of it to fiscally-strapped public schools and sending a part of it back to give relief from local taxes.

Obviously, the cries of education forces—from students to parents to teachers—for help in the face of Fordice's slash and burn policy on education funding had been heard with an impassioned ear in the Legislature. Lawmakers showed they are ready to take the political risks of voting a tax hike.

It must be added that the Senate not only refused to heed Fordice's threat, but it also gave the brush-off to the vocal opposition of its own presiding officer, Lt. Gov. Eddie Briggs.

Just why Briggs, who certainly doesn't pretend to be carrying water for his fellow Republican—Fordice—got into the education-tax hike controversy is not yet clear. But Briggs can be assured that he has now become branded as an education foe by the school forces and he will no longer be regarded as a mere bystander in the legislative process.

The Senate tax bill, despite being put together in haste against a legislative deadline, is perhaps the most cleverly crafted tax measure this writer has ever seen.

It contains several choice dishes (one senator called it a "blue plate special") to pull votes from several hard-to-get factions. One, of course, is the diversion of $45 million of the sales tax to counties and cities to give long-sought relief from the high cost of auto tags.

And the counties and cities would get another $36 million to shore up their hard-pressed operating funds, thus to ease the demand from the local government entities for their own sales tax.

To further take pressure off county supervisors, who now must raise ad valorem taxes 7 percent each year if requested by the school district, the Senate measure reduces the annual mandatory increase to 4 percent. But it allows the taxing authority discretionary power to grant more than a 4 percent increase.

Education would get $66 million—$20 million to implement the new "Excellence in Education Act" and $46 million for the Education Reserve Fund (of which public schools would get half, and community colleges/universities half).

The state's working cash balance fund would be guaranteed $10 million of the new taxes and what's left, an estimated $10 million, would go to the state general fund.

There is an automatic triggering mechanism in the bill to tack on an additional 1/4 percent sales tax in July, 1994—making the rate 7.25 percent—for local governments to replace money lost by eliminating the inventory tax on retail stores.

The strategy of the Senate Finance Committee leaders from the start of the tax bill was to not just settle for the three-fifths vote to pass it, but to move forward only if they had the two-thirds vote needed to override a Fordice veto: They got it with six votes to spare.

Now the fate of the sales tax bill shifts to the House. There were strong overtones from many House members who drifted into the Senate chamber during the final debate on the bill last Thursday that the momentum for the tax hike measure will carry over into the lower chamber.

Predictions are, however, that House education forces will seek to increase the amount of the 1-cent sales tax hike that is dedicated to public schools under the Senate measure.

"If in the name of education you extract that much money, we want to see it is routed that way," said Rep. Billy McCoy of Rienzi, the House Education chairman.

Fordice, blasting the Senate tax bill as "business as usual," was obviously taken aback by the strong vote the bill got in the Senate. He tried to exude confidence that his anti-tax stance will be vindicated in the House.

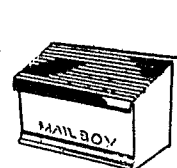

But the mood of the Legislature seemed to be more inclined toward a head-on confrontation with the Republican governor who most lawmakers do not believe was given any mandate to dismantle education and other state service.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Pines Day Care Center unfairly portrayed by media

I have been the bookkeeper for the Pines Day Care Center since 1978, with the exception of three years, and I work out of my home. I have never been as shocked as I was to witness the media treatment of recent charges leveled against our employees.

Two of our teachers have been accused of possible child abuse for taping mouths and eyes of children during nap time. Two teachers in question have both been working for the Center for the last 2½ years.

They are intelligent, artistic and the cream of the crop as far as teachers go. One is married to a minister and the other one is the sister of a minister. Can anyone imagine what the news coverage and the conduct of local public officials have done to their self-esteem?

Even if the allegations are true, no one deserves the treatment one of them has gotten.

The alleged child abuse could not have been common practice, because every child or teacher would have known about it; but reportedly, only seven out of about 45 children claimed they did.

What are teachers to do? Because in today's society, discipline of any kind is called "child abuse." Although I do not condone the taping of eyes, our teachers are like mothers to all of our children. Whenever I go to the Center, I can feel the love and tranquility in the place, and I can vouch for all our employees.

Three times recently I have heard rumors about a Waveland school where taping of the mouth is common practice and accepted as such. Will law enforcement officers threaten to close the school or fire the teachers? I think there, too, should be an investigation.

The content of this letter is my opinion alone, and does not reflect the sentiment of the Lutheran Church of the Pines, nor the Day Care Center.

No future for our children in the 'business' of gambling

Dear Editor:

Considering the direction we seem to be going on the Gulf Coast, here are a few suggestions concerning some classes for the Gulf Coast high schools to prepare students for a highly productive future.

Let's teach our kids how to work the casinos. We could start by teaching them the fundamentals, like how to deal cards, play craps and spin roulette wheels. Later in the course, let them learn how to deal from the bottom of the deck, alter dice, and other ways to help the house win. Maybe in their senior year, let them get hands-on experience in the casinos, kind of like Distributive Education.

If that's not enough, let's teach them extortion, drug dealing, bartending (because every decent casino has to have a bar), and other courses of that nature.

If you think that there is a bit of moral conflict here, then why in the world would you want to use taxes from this "precious revenue raiser" to fund our children's education?

Also, what kind of example can this be? We teach our children that they should stay in school and get a good education, and then we show them that they can get "good" jobs by just working in the casinos. Or better yet, let them make a living by gambling and not work at all.

And for those who believe the fairy-tale that crime doesn't always follow legalized gambling, look at the situation everywhere this exists. You say there won't be any crime. Okay, let's pretend there is a "slight" chance this won't happen. I, for one, don't want to take that chance. It has been proven, in my opinion, this business draws elements that I, as well as a few individuals, don't want in this area.

I live in Hancock County, where an atmosphere of easy gain without work already exists. What kind of atmosphere do you think this will bring to the area? Kind of like trying to put out a fire with gasoline, don't you think?

Mason Technology moves into Army Ammo Plant

The U.S. Army Armament, Munitions and Chemical Command (AMC) has signed a Facility Use Contract with Mason Technologies Inc. (MTI), which will allow MTI to produce 50,000 aluminum .155 mm shell bases at the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant (MSAAP), located at Stennis Space Center, Hancock County, announced U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor. The $1.1 million aluminum shell base contract is expected to be signed by MTI and AMC within a week.

"Ever since the Army began mothballing the MSAAP two years ago, I have been hopeful we could bring this state-of-the-art $800 million facility back to life. It's survival of the fittest during periods of declining budgets, and I am thankful the ammo plant's potential has finally been recognized," said Taylor.

The $1.1 million contract is expected to create between 25 to 50 jobs within the next five months. The plant should begin replacing the aluminum bases by September.

Because of the Army's large stockpile of .155 mm shells, the round aluminum bases on the aft of the shell deteriorate and must be periodically replaced during the projectile's expected 10- to 20-year lifespan. MTI will be responsible for renovating the base of .155 mm shells with new aluminum bases.

"The Army, which owns the facility, made it clear to both me and the Southern Development Association—a group I worked with to market the plant—that the high-tech computers, lathes, milling machines and forges would be maintained," Taylor said. "This was essential in bringing in contractors to reutilize the plant," Taylor said.

The contract also allows MTI to enter into additional production contracts with government and private sector contractors. It also provides procedures for MTI to subcontract facilities to other companies interested in locating at MSAAP.

In addition, progress has been made with other companies interested in the plant. Those negotiations are expected in April.

"In April, we should have a better idea of how serious the interested companies really are about moving to Mississippi," said Taylor.

If all four companies join MTI, nearly 40 percent of the plant would be utilized, having created 1,000 jobs by 1994.

Senate update

Lawmakers address education funding

BY TRACI BONNEY

The state Senate took action Friday on two measures dealing with education funding.

Sen. Vic Frankiewicz proposed an amendment to the fiscal year 1993 budget that will restore $31 million cut from the FY 1992 minimum program fund for public schools. Thirty-four senators co-sponsored the amendment after it was proposed, Frankiewicz said.

"We amended the proposed FY '93 budget and included funds to pay the leftover 1992 expenses. The money will be coming out of the 1993 funds," he explained. "The school districts may have to dip into their cash reserves to pay their 1992 expenses, but this measure will restore the funds to the districts."

The measure passed and advanced to the House for consideration.

The second measure, Senate Bill 3120, also passed. It deals with tax modifications to bring increased revenues.

The bill removes the individual itemized nonbusiness state income tax deduction allowed under current law for the payment of state income taxes, resulting in increased revenues of approximately $10,000,000 annually.

It also increases the state sales tax from six percent to seven percent starting July 1, but repeals the three percent sales tax on wholesale sales of soft drinks and syrup. A summary of the bill states the repeal of the soft drink tax will cost the state $10,000,000, but the one percent increase in the sales tax is expected to raise $156,000,000 in a 12-month period.

Of the revenues anticipated from the one percent sales tax hike, the first $20,000,000 is earmarked to fund the Excellence in Education act of 1992 and $46,000,000 will be deposited into the Education Reserve Fund.

S.B. 3120 also levies a new sales tax on interstate telecommunications, which is expected to bring in revenues of more than $10,000,000 annually, and exempts from ad valorem taxation inventories held for resale by retail stores.

Another provision of the bill reduces the amount budgeted for central administration by two percent a year for five years. A district can obtain a waiver of this requirement if the district's ratio of noninstructional to instructional expenditure is below the state average. In addition, the provision does not apply to central administrations with five or fewer full-time employees.

Frankiewicz said the point of this provision is to shift more money from noninstructional areas of the districts' budgets to instructional items.

He commented, "When this bill was first introduced with a different version of this provision, we heard more squealing from superintendents across the state — although not from those in Hancock County — than when the minimum program fund got cut."

"I was appalled at the lack of guts on the superintendents' parts to take on the challenge to improve education."

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire

Turkey is inexpensive substitute for veal

Some years ago, when veal was so cheap and plentiful, it was known in my neighborhood in uptown New Orleans as "city chicken," and many an elegant ladies' luncheon chicken salad or party sandwich was made from veal instead of chicken breast—can you believe it!

Such elegant dishes of today as veal scallopine and medallions of veal and veal "birds" and "cordon bleu" and such were everyday fare in those days, while in many homes chicken was reserved for Sunday dinner!

But now the tables are turned. I long ago started substituting the white meat of chicken, and also of turkey, for the more expensive veal in many a dish, with tasty results. That's why I was to be found "in that number" on Sunday, crowding up to the frozen foods case for that extra-special bargain in not-too-large-sized turkey breasts at one of our markets. And, I think that I must have had at least a dozen on-the-spot requests for ideas as to how to use the turkey breast, aside from simply roasting one whole.

This time, I asked the butcher to cut the breast in half, and I thawed and roasted half with slices of orange, basting it with orange juice and wine and seasonings. The other half, I made use of in other ways. I let it almost thaw out, then cut thin slices or cutlets, along with several other slightly thicker slices or pieces sometimes sold as turkey "tenderloins" or "fillets" cut from the breast.

These cutlets (cut 1/8 to 3/8 inches thick, take only 2 or 3 minutes on each side to cook as they are so thin; be sure not to overcook. For scaloppine and veal marsala and Veal Cordon Bleu, for example, place the cutlets between two sheets of heavy-duty plastic wrap and flatten to 1/4-inch thickness (if they are thicker) with a meat mallet or rolling pin (and cut into squares if you wish).

For a "turkey" veal dish, you might try a:

SIMPLE SCALLOPINE

Approximately 1 1/2 lbs. "scallop"—cutlets—pounded thin as above

Flour, salt, pepper, paprika and grated Parmesan cheese
1/2 lb. fresh mushrooms, thinly sliced

4 Tblsp. butter
1 bouillon cube dissolved in 1/2 cup boiling water
3 or 4 Tblsp. sherry or Marsala wine as you prefer

Dredge the pounded-thin veal with flour seasoned with the salt, pepper, paprika and Parmesan to your taste. Sauté the "scallop" and mushrooms in heated butter until golden brown on both sides, and remove to a hot platter.

Add the bouillon to the pan, stirring in the wine while scraping the pan well. Pour the sauce over the meat. Serve with fettuccine or creamed potatoes. (2 servings)

One of my favorite scaloppine recipes over the years is from Doros Restaurant in San Francisco, elegant stronghold of Northern Italian cuisine. It calls for veal, but these days I substitute turkey cutlets. Here's:

SCALLOPINE A LA DOROS

Approximately 1 1/2 lbs. turkey cutlets or slices
1/3 cup all-purpose flour
1/8 tsp. pepper
Salt according to your taste (1/2 tsp. suggested)
12 eggplant slices, 1/2-inch

Country/western dance scheduled

thick
4 Tblsp. oil
2 Tblsp. butter
1 lb. sliced fresh mushrooms
4 Tblsp. butter
1 Tblsp. shallots, chopped (substitute green onions if you wish)

1/2 cup dry sauterne
3/4 cup condensed beef broth
2 Tblsp. all-purpose flour
1 Tblsp. butter
1/4 cup chopped parsley

Cut cutlets into 12 even pieces, and pound till 1/8-inch thick. Combine the one-third cup flour, salt and pepper, and dip pieces to coat slightly. Set aside.

Cook eggplant in skillet in hot oil for 2 to 3 minutes per side or till tender and brown; keep warm in slow oven. In the same skillet, melt the 2 tablespoons of butter, stir in mushrooms. Cover and cook 8 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Meanwhile, melt 2 tablespoons butter in a 12-inch skillet. Quickly brown half the cutlets at a time, little over a minute a side, perhaps a minute and a half. Melt 2 tablespoons of butter for the second lot, remove to a platter and keep warm.

To the same pan, add shallots and wine. Blend the beef broth and 2 tablespoons of flour, and stir into wine mixture, cooking and stirring until bubbly. Arrange eggplant and cutlets overlapping atop the mushrooms on a platter. Pour sauce over all, and sprinkle with parsley. (4 servings)

"100 Years of Service"

Franklin Delano Roosevelt enters his second year as President during the worst of the Depression. Prohibition ends with the repeal of the 21st Amendment and severe drought transforms the Great Plains into the "Dust Bowl". Thousands of midwestern farm families migrate to California to escape crushing poverty.

Meanwhile in Hancock County...

Work begins on Highway 90. Thousands of people gathered in Bay St. Louis Wednesday morning from New Orleans and Gulf Coast points (via special trains), "in celebration and barbecue and commemorating actual beginning work on the long sought for direct highway (Highway 90) between New Orleans and the Gulf Coast," held on the grounds of St. Stanislaus College.

The gathering was held under auspices of "the Mayor and Commission Council, the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club, the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County."

New Orleans Mayor Walmsley, after speaking of the close connection between the city and the coast said, "When the new highway is finished, we want you to come to New Orleans as readily as New Orleans has been coming to you."

The Sea Coast Echo is there.

Optimist sailing

Uram lands spot on USODA European team

BY TRACI BONNEY

The U.S. Optimist Dinghy Association will have a local sailor on its European team this year.

Of 64 competitors, Alan Uram of the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club finished 10th overall in last weekend's Optimist team trials at BWYC. The top five finishers are on the World team. The European team consists of the next five finishers and the three females who finished highest after 10th.

The European team, in order of finish, includes Ian Burman of the Severn Sailing Association of Annapolis, Md.; Erik Bernstein of the Coral Reef Yacht Club in Florida; P.J. Buhler, also of Coral Reef; Grant Garcia of the Coconut Grove Sailing Club in Florida; Uram; Annemarie Casasa, Aubry Eich and Katie Dixon, all of the St. Petersburg Yacht Club in Florida.

The European team will compete July 27-August 2 in Suend-borg, Denmark.

The USODA World team includes, in order of finish, Brad Funk of Clearwater Yacht Club in Florida; David Ames of Coconut Grove; Chris Gaffney of Coral Reef; Brian Wynne of Southern Yacht Club in New Orleans; and Christina Bickley of St. Petersburg. The world team will compete in Argentina December 28-January 7.

Other local participants in the regatta were Sanders Kane of BWYC, who finished 18th; John Dane of Pass Christian Yacht Club, who finished 20th; Marcus Eagan of BWYC, who finished 25th; Chad Renken of BWYC, who finished 41st; and David Taylor, also of BWYC.

Regatta co-chairman Mark Uram said the winds Sunday were considerably higher than they were during the first three races Saturday.

"The competitors did real well, though, despite the winds. They hung in there and did their best," he commented.

"The USODA officials were impressed with the trials. They said it was the finest example of race management that they have seen. Credit for that goes to race committee chairman Walter Chamberlain and his committee."

Chamberlain was pleased with the weekend's outcome, but seemed relieved it was finished.

"That thing was a monumental task," he commented with a chuckle. Shifting gears, he added, "They wanted rough weather and they got it."

"The officials wanted a team that could compete in a national class, where they have some rough weather, I guess. So we got lucky and had the kind of weather they needed."

"It was fun. I thought the race committee we had included a good bunch of really experienced people; I guess that's why we were able to give the officials the courses they wanted."

"I hope we've selected a nice group of guys and gals that will represent the U.S. well."

The trials had a positive economic impact on the county, Uram said. In addition to the competitors, Hancock County saw a minor influx of parents, siblings and coaches for the three-day event.

"I wouldn't be surprised if we had 150 to 175 people in the area."

"They really enjoyed going out to eat. We tried to direct them to dine locally, and they pretty much did that. Some of the people came in early on Thursday, and some stayed over until Monday, so that's five days that extra people were in the county, eating at the restaurants and visiting the businesses."

"Several of the moms were here with their children, and many of them didn't want to go out on the race course, so they probably went shopping."

"For a lot of the people who came here, this was really their first stop in Bay St. Louis, and they were really impressed with our local area. They all said they would like to come back. Several of them said they would like to see the trials held here again next year."

Gaudin: BHS track running well in '92

The Bay High boys track squads have been doing well so far this season, according to coach Rocky Gaudin.

The junior high squad has placed first in three of four meets. Their only loss was in the first meet of the year, the D'Iberville Invitational, where they lost to St. Martin by only two points.

Since that meet, the junior high squad has won the Hancock Invitational (a four-team meet), a tri-team meet at St. Stanislaus and the eight-team Hancock Relays, which featured two 5A and seven 4A schools in competition with Bay High.

The high school squad started the season with a fourth place showing at the eight-team D'Iberville Invitational. They went on to take first at the Hancock Invitational, third in the St. Stanislaus meet and third in the Hancock Relays, where they were short several athletes.

The junior high squad is led by the sprinting of Xavier Lewis, who has run a 10.9 100-meter dash and a 23.8 200-meter dash, and the relay team of Leroy Hawkins, Brad Laneaux, Phillip Summers, Lydell Haynes and Michael Price. Richard Benton has won the discus throw in every meet so far, and Raleigh Murphy has been first or second in the shot put each time.

The high school squad has been led by Kendal Laneaux, who swept the 100-meter and 200-meter dashes at Hancock and was also part of the strong 400- and 800-meter relay teams, along with relay teammates Dwayne Antoine, Pedro Roberts, Floyd Lewis, Sam Sheppard, Charles Hawkins and Adrian Whavers. Kevin Gillum has continued to do very well in both the 110-meter high and 300-meter intermediate hurdles. Miguel Smith, Keith Corr and Tripp Whavers have been strong in the field events.

The high school squad participated in the Judge Gaston Hewes Relays at Gulfport High Saturday. Kevin Gillum placed second in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles and third in the 110-meter high hurdles, and Travis Collins placed fifth in the 1600-meter race. Three team members finished sixth in their events: Charles Hawkins in the long jump; Tripp Whavers in the high jump; and Miguel Smith in the shot put.

The remainder of the regular high school track season meets include one in Poyune today, and the M&M Relays at Moss Point next Tuesday. The junior high squad will run next in the Gulf Coast Junior High Conference Meet, tentatively scheduled for Monday at St. Stanislaus.

Main St. Methodist Children's Choir presents musical

Choir and cast rehearses "The Boy Who Believed."

The Main St. Methodist Children's Choirs will present the Easter musical, "The Boy Who Believed," Palm Sunday, April 12, at 7 p.m. in the church sanctuary.

Director is Carol Mahler, with Mary Howard as accompanist.

Performing with the choir will be Dr. David Skagerberg, David Dorn, Patsy Boswell, Carl Guy, Judy Guy and Daniel Guy.

Jeffrey Cicerchi will assume the lead role of Zach, an orphan boy. Through faith and an unusual encounter, Zach comes to accept Jesus Christ.

The musical is set in Old Jerusalem and "lets you experience the life, death and resurrection of Christ through the innocence and searchings of a young boy," said director Mahler.

"This touching musical is sure to move and renew your spirit through songs, tears and praise," she said.

Circus comes to Civic Center

As a community service project the Bay-Waveland Jaycees will sponsor Allen Bros. Circus in Bay St. Louis today at the Hancock County Civic Center with performances at 5 and 7:30 p.m.

Circuses date back to the seventh century B.C., and some elements of the early great shows in Rome's Circus Maximus have persisted throughout, despite changing customs and tastes.

Trained wild animals were featured then, and are now.

Advance reduced-rate tickets may be purchased from any member of Bay-Waveland Jaycees.

accepted as substantially completed. Eaton said street paving, shoulder stabilization and clean up items waiting on sewer work completion were the only items keeping the water line project from final status.

City attorney Lucien Gex added the city retains 10% on the total job as back up to any default by the contractor.

Eaton commented he anticipates project completion prior to the August contract deadline.

Discussion concerning adjudication of property described as needing well over $5,000 in clean up costs prompted a suggestion by Mayor Stella Frilot for the board to increase the maximum allowable litter fine from the present $50 to $1,000.

She cited the states of Texas ($1,000 maximum fine) and Colorado ($5,000 maximum fine) as two areas where litter problems have been sternly addressed.

She suggested the board take a firm stand against litter and dumping, which she claimed was practiced by individuals along many of Waveland's dead end streets and secluded areas.

Ward 3 Alderman Curtis P. "Phil" Colson expressed concerns that someone could be charged $1,000 for tossing a can out of a car window.

Gex said fines were set by the ruling judge and were generally made in accordance with the severity of the violation.

Police Chief James Varnell, commenting from the audience, explained the difficulty the police department faces in catching litter violators in the act.

"It is near to impossible," Varnell stated. "You have to see them in the act.

"What I would suggest is we offer rewards to the public. They see the people, they could report who is doing it and come in and sign an affidavit and we could give them $50."

The board agreed to consider the suggestions made concerning the litter and dumping problems.

Type-a-thon benefits Leukemia Society

Bay High National Honor Society sponsored a typing fund-raiser recently to raise money for the Leukemia Society of America. The students participated in 'Five Minutes for Life Leukemia Type-a-thon' and collected pledges based on correct words per minute typed during a five-minute time period.

After the type-a-thon, the group collected $323 for the Leukemia Society. Students participating will receive various prizes for their efforts, such as stop watches, sports bags and stereo headsets.

Leukemia is the No. 1 disease killer of children, yet it strikes ten times as many adults than children. The fund-raiser encouraged students to increase typing skills and to help victims of leukemia.

Money raised from the event will be used to help fund the Leukemia Society's programs of research and patient aid.

There are eight leukemia patients receiving financial aid in Hancock County, and some 300 patients receiving aid throughout the state.

For more information about leukemia, the Leukemia Society and its programs, call collect (205) 939-1690.

Experiment in education

Seven educators from the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District participated in a National Science Foundation-funded program—Chemistry for Elementary Teachers—held at USM March 21. Teachers, administrators and resource personnel from 13 school districts and one consortium were selected from 26 applicants to participate in the two-year program, which emphasizes critical thinking skills and a hands-on approach to teaching science. To illustrate the method's effectiveness, the teams were led through chemistry experiments using common household items such as plastic bottles, spoons, baking soda and sugar. Attending were, seated from left, Tom Laird, counselor, Bay High; Paula Dauro, teacher, Waveland Elementary; Betty Jones, administrative assistant; Alan Wilson, Teach, Bay Middle School; standing, Suzanne Gilmore, teacher, Bay Middle School; Ann Riess, teacher, North Bay Elementary; and Kim Stasny, principal, North Bay.

Morse, Cazier named Star student, teacher

Coast Episcopal High School has announced the selection of Michelle Ann Morse as STAR Student for 1991-92. She has chosen Sandra Cazier as STAR Teacher.

The Student-Teacher Achievement Recognition (STAR) Program, sponsored by the Mississippi Economic Council, encourages and promotes academic excellence among Mississippi's high school seniors.

Morse is president of the National Honor Society and vice-president of the Key Club. She is a member of Mu Alpha Theta, SADD, and Quill and Scroll. She was the Gulfport Exchange Club's Youth of the Month in December and was senior maid in the 1992 Coast Episcopal Homecoming.

Morse was the 1991 recipient of the Bausch and Lomb Science Award, the Martha Guild Blue Ribbon Award, and the Sewanee Book of Excellence Award. She was the 1991 Pepsi Student of the Year and is listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students.

The daughter of Betty Morse of Jackson and George Morse of Gulfport, Michelle plans to study biomedical engineering at Louisiana State University.

Cazier has taught English, creative writing and biology at Coast Episcopal for eight years. She is a graduate of Millsaps College and has done graduate work at the University of Southern Mississippi, William Carey

College and the University of the Philippines. She was Coast Episcopal's STAR Teacher for the 1990-91 school year also.
